Car in tune with modern needs

HIGH costs are making motorists think more seriously about their choice of transport.

Instead of running large vehicles, many could save pounds – and the planet – by downsizing to a practical vehicle, particularly if the model offers the creature comforts of a big car. And nowadays, many smaller cars do.

A good model to consider is the Renault Modus, which is as funky as it is versatile. This little mover has not only been refreshed but is offered in a more spacious Grand Modus form, which, in effect, makes it a compact MPV. And it exudes a solidity that few other small cars can match.

The bigger model doesn't come cheap, though, with on-the-road prices going from £10,975 to £14,275 but while it is more expensive than a number of small vehicles, costs do compare favourably with well-equipped top-of-the-range rivals.

The Modus family is certainly big on style, offering 15 versions across two trim levels, Expression and Dynamique, with the widest range of engines and transmissions in its class.

The motors include Renault's advanced 1.2-litre TCE (turbo control efficiency) petrol engine, which is a gem of engineering. There is 100bhp on tap to prove it can deliver the performance of larger capacity units while maintaining low fuel consumption and emissions.

However, in much demand are the diesels, with the 1.5-litre unit offering different power outputs. The middle band motor with 86bhp is a cracker, being quick, smooth, economical, cheap to insure, and having high standards in emissions which all help to keep a tight rein on ownership costs. Its five-speed manual gearbox is slick with ratios, nicely spaced for a blend of performance with economy.

With its extra 160mm length, there is generous load space of up to 1,454 litres and with the split and flat-folding rear seats, the Grand Modus can become more versatile for families with extra luggage.

The cabin is spacious and classy looking, with a central digital dashboard display that can be read at a glance. There are plenty of storage spaces and handy features, such as the aircraft-style fold-down tables.

On the road, the Spanish-built Modus will put a smile on your face. The diesel unit is flexible in town, accelerates briskly for swift overtaking and is fun to drive on long hauls.

However you drive the Grand Modus, the fuel consumption seems to be pleasing, with 60mpg-plus obtained in combined-cycle driving. With CO2 levels at 119g/km, owners pay £35 a year for the road fund licence and are exempt from the London congestion charge.

The ride is relatively soft and pliable with the vehicle remaining composed for safe handling by the press-on driver. The car is quiet riding, too, thanks partly to digital fine-tuning of vibration and acoustic performance.

Where the Renault scores highly is on safety standards.

The first-generation Modus made history as the first small car to gain a five-star Euro NCAP adult protection crash test result and set a benchmark for child passenger safety. The new Modus and Grand Modus sustain this high level of protection.

The cars are offered with a wealth of modern and innovative features,

Hereford Motorshow

only in your Hereford Times

HIGH Town is preparing to host the fifth Hereford Motor Show on Saturday, an event that has become a firm fixture on the city's calendar.

The 2010 British International Motor Show may have been cancelled as a result of the credit crunch, but Hereford's annual show remains as popular as ever, and Saturday's show promises a wide range - from lovingly restored and maintained classic cars to the latest models from local dealerships.

The number of classics on display has grown in the last 12 months, with new owners joining Hereford Classic Club, and taking part in the motor show for the first time. It's a development that chairman Glyn Jones puts down to the exposure the club gets at the show. "It's definitely had an effect," he says.

This year, Melvyn Ingram of Melgray HiTec in Widemarsh Street, has once again masterminded a mass display of iconic MGs, but this year they've moved into High Town where they can be seen against the picturesque backdrop of The Old House.

Taking part in the Motor Show for the first time is Andrew Sanders of Station Auto Services, Hereford's only Bosch Car Service Centre, and specialists in LPG conversions, who will bring an LPG conversion to the show. "Converting to LPG can save you 40% in fuel costs," says Andrew, "as well as reducing CO2 emissions by 12%."

He'll also be demonstrating just how much car maintenance has moved on in recent years, with a display of diagnostic equipment. "I reckon we've got more laptops than PCWorld," he says.

Visitors can also learn about PointMe Vehicle Solution company, which offers a wide range of leasing solutions, among them a leasing option for young drivers, who can enjoy the safety of driving a new car as they start their driving lives.

With exhibitors including Five Acres Nissan, Keith Price Subaru, Stirling Suzuki, Hereford Saab, Callow Marsh Renault and Bengry's bringing Peugeot and Mazda, the show offers a unique opportunity to for potential car-buyers to browse a wide range of marques and models in a single venue, with time left over to check out everything else

Hereford has to offer.

"The motor show is a great vehicle for attracting people into the city," says Hereford city manager, Cynthia Palmer. "They come for the cars, but then discover how much more there is.

"City centre retailers love it, too," she adds. "The more people come into the city, the more people walk through the doors of their shops, because all the elements that combine to make Hereford the perfect venue for a motor show are the very things that also create a great place to shop."

THE ECONOMY IS LOOKING GOOD

Hereford Motorshow- bigger and better than ever!

THIS year's display in High Town by members of the Classic Car Club will be bigger and better than ever, thanks in large part to the Hereford Motor Show, which has helped to bring the club and its activities to a wider audience.

Last year's 26 members and their lovingly restored and maintained vehicles will be joined this year by some exciting new exhibits. Among them is a Crossley owned by Mike Sumner - manufactured by the British Crossley Motors, a company which produced around 19,000 cars between 1904 and 1938 and military vehicles during both world wars.

Also new to the club this year are a Triumph Mayflower, a Morris 1000 van, and MG Midget, an MGB, an Austin Seven Box and an Austin Seven Ruby, the last of the Austin Sevens.

All the old favourites will be out again, among them Philip Buller's 1959 Heinkel bubble car, two Austin A40 Somersets, one belonging to club chairman Glyn Jones, who has owned the car twice, a 1937 Austin 10, a 1934 Wolseley Wasp, the oldest car on display and, a relative youngster in the classic stakes, a Triumph Stag.

The Classic Car Club members and their vehicles are now a fixture of the Hereford Motor Show and at a range of other events, where they not only bring their cars for people to look at and admire, but also to raise funds for charities, which have included the NSPCC and Acorns Children's Hospice.

"It's not just about the cars," says Glyn Jones, explaining how sociable the club has become since it was started more than 25 years ago. "There are lots of events organised throughout the year, including evening drives, weekends away, Christmas get-togethers and a summer barbecue, and we all help each other out with parts when we can."

When Des Lewis and Dave Curtis started the club, their first meeting was attended by six enthusiasts. This year, the club's membership is close to 40 and going from strength to strength.

"We've seen a nice increase in members," says Glyn. "And it's definitely thanks to the Hereford Motor Show."

More than just a Motor show...

A compact city centre makes the perfect open-air showcase for the wide range of cars on display in Hereford's annual motor show.

It also provides easy access to the wide variety of shops, bars and cafés that are an essential element of a great day out.

Anyone who is drawn to the city for the attractions of the Motor Show will also discover a retail experience that has everything.

A wide range of major national stores within easy walking distance, no (moving) cars to avoid, and a great selection of unusual, independent retailers offering a wide and tempting choice of things you won't find elsewhere.

From kitchenware to cutting-edge fashion, out-of-the-ordinary gifts to contemporary jewellery, Hereford has shops to tempt both the die-hard shopper and the laid-back browser, so whatever your retail style, there's something to hit the spot.

Though your impulse buy is more likely to be a t-shirt than a brand new car, the Motor Show has, in previous years, seen at least one customer so impressed with what he saw that he bought a car on the spot.

Combine your day out at the Motor Show with a little retail therapy, then add a relaxing coffee stop or leisurely lunch to complete the experience.

With an extensive selection of cafés and restaurants offering shoppers real choice when it's time to take the weight off, the only problem is deciding where to pull in for your pitstop. Whether you want a quick cappuccino, a three-course meal or light lunch, explore High Town, Church Street, Widemarsh Street and beyond and you'll find you're spoilt for choice.

Cars will undoubtedly be the centre of attraction on Saturday but take the time to look around and you'll also enjoy all the character, charm and choice Hereford has to offer.
